"WATERSHED Exploring a New Water Ethic for the New West"

Produced by the Redford Center and Kontent Films
Directed by Mark Decena
Narrated by Robert Redford

WATERSHED tells the story of the threats to the once-mighty Colorado River and offers solutions for the future of the American West. As the most dammed, dibbed, and diverted river in the world struggles to support thirty million people and the peace-keeping agreement known as the Colorado River Pact reaches its limits, WATERSHED introduces hope.

Can we meet the needs of a growing population in the face of rising temperatures and lower rainfall in an already arid land? Can we find harmony amongst the competing interests of cities, agriculture, industry, recreation, wildlife, and indigenous communities with rights to the water? Last month, stakeholders met at a Department of the Interior event titled "Moving Forward" to discuss steps in a collaborative process and actions promoting augmentation, conservation, and reuse of existing supplies to address gaps in supply and demand. Wise use and new technologies are part of the solution to closing that gap.

The Idaho Section of the American Water Resources Association (IDAWRA) invites you to view the film and then stay to discuss the message and what you see in the future of the New West with Tim Personius, Deputy Director of the Bureau of Reclamation Pacific Northwest Region. A reception with light appetizers is included with the purchase of the ticket (cash bar) on the patio, will precede the viewing.

Reception on the patio: 6:00 PM
Film: 7:00 to 8:00 PM, followed by discussion in the theater.

Tickets available through IDAWRA or at the Flicks.
